Robert joined Deep South in 2009 as a loss control representative after being employed with another insurance organization as a special investigation manager since 2004. Prior to his entry into the insurance industry, Robert served for more than 27 years in law enforcement as a detective and patrol officer. He brings exceptional investigative skills and a portfolio of impressive credentials in the areas of criminology, criminal justice and fire science to the insurance industry from his time in law enforcement. He also has experience in the transportation sector including fleet service training, and investigative research.

Robert attended Nicholls State University where he studied criminal justice and Northwestern University where he attended the Police Science Institute. In his spare time, he enjoys fishing, hunting, traveling and greatly enjoys visiting and exploring the mountains of Tennessee and North Carolina.
